The rebels near Swatow having made Kiu-ying Chou their head quarters are fortifying themselves strongly, and the neighbourhood has been ravaged for supplies. They are reported to be organizing a flotilla for the attack of Ch'aou Chau for which if carried into effect will probably lead to a request for foreign assistance. Hankow is even in a worse plight, according to the latest The Nien-fei had advanced to within 20 miles, and the villages could be seen in flames at the time of Hankow the local paper going to press. The original disturbance arose on the part of a body of braves who deeming themselves ill used on account of their pay having been withheld for some 18 months had declared their intention of sacking the city. Their approach was however staved off by conces sions on the part of the Viceroy; but no sooner was this danger at an end than the Nien-fei availing themselves of the panic already set in throughout the country advanced in force and with an apparent determination to do the work of devastation thoroughly. The foreign inhabitants are now under arms and in daily expectation of attack and probable massacre.

The province of Anhui is in the most disturbed state. Large bodies of rebels have made their appearance, and the authorities are puting every available point in a state of defence.

The familiar if not pleasant subject Piracy and murder have again been brought prominently into public notice,

THE following Notification has been publis hed at Honkow :-

The undersigned have been informed by the Chinese Authorities that a large body of braves have revolted at Sungpoo, a place distant about 40 to 50 miles from Hankow, and that there is every probability that these men will march upon Hankow within the next twoor three days. The Undersigned have ceen entreated in consequence to concet measures for the defence of the settlement the " rale lords of the soil." So for anocooperation with the local authorities. They there fore deem it necessary to make known the danger t the Community, and to notify that they are at this moment occupied in concerting plans with th commanders of Their Majesties' Gunboats, for 'the protection of as much of the foreign quarter as can be in which much gunpowder was burnt at brought within the influence of the limited means of safe distances, and spears were vehemently

As a preliminary measure the Undersigned give notice that in the event of the disaffected troops approaching so near to the walls to occasion imminent danger, a signal of two heavy guns, discharged in quick succession, will be fired from one of the Gunboats whereupon it is requested that all persons will immediatly repair armed to the Club, and endeavours will then be made to organise them into a provisional force of cooperation for tee common good, At same signal all ladies and children should be conveyed to the British Consulate where their safety will be

The Undersigned are likewise making arrange ments for having four or or six pieces of artiller placed at their disposal for mounting at the mos available points of defence, and any persons who care to volunteer for serving the pieces are invited to send vice to the Chinese officials in their enin their names at once, so that they may be somewhat drilled to the use thereof as quickly as

It is earnestly hoped that what danger there ma be may disappear in the course of the week, either in consequence of the precautionary measures now being adopted, or of some compromise being entered into butween the authorites and the braves, or of their finding it to their interest to move in some other direction. But meanwhile it is indisputable tha some precautionary measures need to be taked, and should the event prove that they are not called for by the present emergency, they will be of service in case of future alarms from the Neenfei, who are likewise assisting the Imperial troops in crushing reported to be not very far distant.

ISTORY OF THE NIENFEL MOVEMENT The advance of the Nienfei into the neighbourhood of the open port of Hankow has naturally directed public attention to their movements, and a retrospect of the leading features connected with this subject will doubtless prove interesting to our readers.

Viceroyalty the state of affairs has been gradually growing more and more unsettled, and this without the excuse that the presence of the Taipings migh afford, until the present out break, more dangerous than its precursors, has attracted public attention to the weak and unsettled state of the central provinces. The Nienfei in Hupeh appear to have been originally an off-shootof the great T'ai-ping movement. About the year 1861 the Imperial troops pressing the Rebels somewhat closely in the Province Anhwei, a high officer was sent into Hupeh to stir up the embers of discontent in that province and thereby create a diversion. Paris, 26th December, 1865. The rappearance of the financial budged is our Christianas present from the political gode. Fould is still hard at work trying to make imperialism pay its way and hard work he has of it. The particulars are not I presume of much interest to you and the document is a terrible one to analyse running a la mode francaise from 1864 to 1867, the national accounts being always two years in arrear and by way of compensation the estimates are as much in advance. The general results seem to be as follows:-The account for 1864 comes out with a deficit of fifty millions of france; that of 1865 with a small balance against it instead of an estimate one of seven millions in its favour; 1866 cannot be spoken off with certainly yet, but the army and navy estimates are less by eleven millions than they were the year before, which sum is likely to be all absorbed for the completion of public works; as to 1867, there are promised savings to the extent of nearly thirty millions and a prospective balance on the right side of the ordinary budged of dinety two millions odd, ninety of which sie to be carried to the extraordinary account no margin therefore for tarit reforms or reduction of taxation even supposing that M. Foulf-does not overstate his case, and that slothing untoward occurs. The extraordinary expanses for 1867 fare set down at 133,556,201 france, or sixteen millions less than for 1866. Amongst the items of the latter are nearly twenty two millions for public works in Algeria t ten and a balf millions for the re-transformation of the navy which is to follow the English example and have guns of 150 to 800 pounds, if not larger; and seventy-two and a half millions for public works or thirty millions less than for 1860. The floating debt, says M. Fould has been reduced front 808 to 772 millions during the present year. If it were not that the sinking fund is absorbed, re- I tion, and had found no evidence sufficient to sustan a trganised or re-established almost every year we should be estonished to hear that an arrangement which English financiers showed to be absurd twenty or thirty years ago should figure still in French finances; that there can be any economy in laying by money to pay off debts hearing interest, instead of liquidating the latter bit by bit, is too abourd to be maintained for a moment, but la le convenient to

There have been two cases before the Courts lately which attracted considerable attention; in both them an outraged husband attacked, the seducer of his wife; in one case the latter was killed, in the other he was rendered blind for life; the prisoners both avowed and justified their act and in both cases the jury pronounced an acquittal. Shan-Yu-fu, duly warned, stated: I keep Speck's heard a great noise. I asked them to go away, and very different. Garde, McDonald, Curling, Watts and Smith went off. They came again and knocked at the door. McDonald was very drunk; he offered me $5 to allow a man to sleep at my house. I refused, aid they went away. I did not see McDonald again. About 3 A.M. Watts and Curling returned, but would not admit them. They made a great noise but I saw no fighting. They were both a little drunk. Smith did not sleep at my house. He came hext morning and said he had slept at Steven's place. To Mr White:-It was about 7.30 P.M. when they came first, and about 10 or 11 when they came the second time. McDonald did not come into the house. I don't know whether Steven bears a good

Stevens' deposition, which he had refused to sign.

(This closed the Case for the Crown). Mr White said that it was evident that during the whole of the evening and night the prisoners and their companions had been the worse for liquor. It metres. did not appear that they had any design against McDonald, and the man Watts who had turned Colt's, Deane's, Tranter's, Adams's, and other Re-Queen's evidence was as flikely as any one else to have committed the crime. Stevens has always, as he would prove, borne a good character, and the one had been all along with the deceased were the most likely to have taken the clothes. As to the cleaning of the pistol, in a climate like that of Hankow it was necessary to clean a revolvery every day, and it was manifestly absurd to suppose that if the prisoners had committed this crime they would have selected the front of the police station to fire off the pistol with which the deed was done.

J. P. Martin, sworn, stated :- I first know Steyens at Hongkong in 1856, when he was in the police. I afterwards knew him when he was employed by Jardine Matheson & Co. He got a good discharge from the police as a sober and inoffensive

Thos. Brown, sworn, stated :- I knew the priconer. Stevens in Hankow, and employed him there. I always found him quiet, sober and inoffensive.

Wm Tarrant, sworn, stated 1- I have known Stevens since early in 1862. He was then a tidewaiter at Canton. I have not seen him since. White at Canton, I lived for a short time in the W. V. Smith, sworn, stated :- I am a merchant at several ports, but never heard anything against W. Fink, sworn, seated :- I have known Stevens gave me McDonald'swatch. I tried to get McDonald M. McLoghlan, sworn, stated:- I have known the J. C. formerly Senior Partner of the Firm of Smith
